Analysis

The secondary market was mostly under pressure this month as risk off sentiment loomed over development out of US. Rising expectation of more hawkish Fed as well as robust US economic data that warrant higher yield UST put pressure on EM asset in general including Indonesia. Investors remain worried that higher for longer US Fed rate and aggressive US fiscal stance going to keep UST yield at elevated level in the mid-term. In an environment of broad EM weakness amid strong USD, bond market experienced continuation of outflow with investors unwinding their risk asset position.
